

EMPOWERING OUR FUTURE: CAA'S COMMITMENT TO CONTINUOUS SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT

- ZACHARIAH PETERS

At CAA, our dedication to delivering high-quality education is unwavering, and today's WASC Self-Study Training was another significant step in our ongoing journey towards excellence. Teachers, coaches and support staff from our esteemed institution came together to engage in an enlightening session focused on continuous school improvement and the sustainable actions that all stakeholders can take to ensure exceptional teaching and learning experiences.

The training, which took place today, was a testament to our commitment to staying at the forefront of educational excellence. It emphasized the importance of ongoing self-assessment and strategic planning as essential elements of maintaining the highest standards in education. Our educators, coaches and support staff delved into the intricacies of continuous improvement, gaining valuable insights into how to enhance the school environment for our students.

In addition, one of the most remarkable aspects of today's training was the active involvement of our students as stakeholders in the process. Led by Larry Savery, our students were given the platform to voice their opinions and contribute to CAA's SWOT analysis. This invaluable opportunity allowed them to play an integral role in shaping the strategic action plan for our institution, ensuring that teaching and learning remain of the highest quality.

At CAA, we firmly believe that the involvement of all stakeholders, including our students, in decision-making processes for continuous improvement is not just important—it's imperative. Our commitment to hearing our students' concerns and ideas underscores our belief that education is a collaborative effort. By working together and valuing each perspective, we can create a dynamic, sustainable, and inclusive learning environment.

Incorporating the voices of our students into our strategic planning ensures that our efforts align with their needs, aspirations, and experiences. It fosters a sense of ownership and responsibility within our student body, empowering them to actively participate in their own educational journey.

As we continue to move forward on the path of educational excellence, today's training serves as as a powerful reminder of our shared commitment to high-quality, sustainable education for teachers, coaches, support staff and learners alike. At CAA, we are not just educating our students; we are empowering them to become active contributors to their education and the betterment of our school community.

We look forward to the positive changes and innovations that will arise from the collaborative efforts of our dedicated educators, coaches, support staff and students. Together, we are shaping a brighter future for CAA, one that reflects our unwavering commitment to delivering the best in teaching and learning.

BOYS DORMS CHECK IN - CORNELL

When strong people fall down, they don't stay down. When strong people break, they don't stay broken. They mend. They piece themselves back together and they come back stronger.

When strong people feel like quitting, they don't. Strong people aren't free from challenges. They're strong because of the challenges they face.

This week we witnessed our students come on top and inspire us with true grit and tenacity winning the recent concluded ISSO Basketball tournament and successfully forming a 'Student Council'.

The road ahead augurs well with our bright and exuberant youth.

We now look forward to the most prestigious award ceremony of the year, 'The Investiture'.

Stay tuned and follow this space for updates.

GIRLS DORMS CHECK IN

- REKHA

Eating can be quite a mammoth task especially since the teens of today are picky eaters. Sandwich is the fastest and the quickest food one can think of as it is the most convenient and satisfying meal.

The simple most versatile food activity was conducted for the girls in the girls dorm: sandwich making.

It proved to be a great bonding activity among the girls with fun and laughter.

The girls enjoyed making sandwiches and eating them too. Being athletes, this helped them understand more about nutrition and made them fond of cooking. The experience of making meals helped them gain some independent life skills and overall was a great time.

ON THE TRACK - SPORTS UPDATE

- PAUL NEARY

This week has seen us complete support play to join the attack.

Always more fun going on to score goals.....

We are looking at how we can progress the success of the last u15 tournament through our multi disciplinary approach to the game in order to fully prepare for this weeks fixtures.

-RYAN HORN

Our tennis student athletes are working hard, preparing for MSLTA & Corvuss American Academy U18 CS7 to be played 14-20 October in Mumbai, followed by Asian Tennis Federation Tournament in Aurangabad.

An essential part of the student athlete high performance program is Rest, Recovery, Recuperation and HYDRATION!

Looking forward to the October, November and December ITF, AITA, ATF, UTR events and tournaments.

FEMININE HYGIENE AND WELLNESS

we had a great session on feminine hygiene and wellness with our speaker, Ms. Smriti. She covered various aspects of hygiene, self-care, and well-being. Knowledge is power!

While sports play a crucial role in enhancing physical fitness, maintaining proper hygiene is equally vital for female athletes, as it is an essential component of their lives. Without it, achieving victory becomes unattainable. Embracing sound hygiene practices can result in enhanced comfort, confidence, and a reduced risk of health issues, empowering female athletes to excel in their chosen sports.
